Integrity

Activity: Integrity can be defined as those internal traits would guide behavior. Read the following story and provide the information requested in the space below.

A true story on integrity.

As a high school coach, I did all I could to help my boys win their games. A dramatic incident, however, following a game in which I officiated as a referee, changed my perspective on victories and defeats.

I was refereeing a league championship basketball game in New Rochelle, New York, between New Rochelle and Yonkers High. New Rochelle was coached by Dan O'Brien, and Yonkers High was coached by Les Beck. The gym was crowded to capacity, and the volume of noise made it impossible to hear. The game was well played and closely contested. Yonkers was leading by one point with less than 30 seconds left to play. Yonkers, in possession of the ball, passed off-shot-missed. New Rochelle recovered - pushed the ball up the court and shot.

The ball rolled tantalizingly around the rim and off. New Rochelle, the home team, recovered the ball and tapped it in for what looked like a victory. The commotion was deafening. I glanced at the clock and saw that the game was over. I checked with the other official, but he could not help me. Still seeking help in this bedlam, I approached the timekeeper, a young man of 17 or so. He said, "Mr. Corvino, the buzzer went off as the ball rolled off the rim, before the final tap in was made." I was in the unbelievable position of having to tell Coach O'Brien the sad news.

"Dan," I said, "time ran out before the final basket was tapped in. Yonkers won the game." His face clouded over. The young timekeeper came up. He said, "I'm sorry, DAD. The time ran out before the final basket." Suddenly, like the sun coming out from behind a cloud, Coach O'Brien's face lit up. He said, "That's okay, Joe. You did what you had to do. I'm proud of you." Turning to me, he said, "Al, I want you to meet my son, Joe." The two of them walked off the court together, the coach's arm around the son's shoulder.

Respect

Activity: R-E-S-P-E-C-T Find out what it means

Respect is the ability to appreciate or show esteem for self, others and authority. Please read the story out loud and ask the group to answer the questions that follow.

Sitting in the gym one day were three athletes. Their names were Talent, the second was X's & O's and the third was Respect.

When it came time to part ways.... Talent got up and said "I'm leaving, if you need to find me, I'll be with the athletes"

Then X's & O's got up and said " I am leaving too, if you need to find me, I will be with the coaches"

Respect got up and said "I'm leaving, once I'm gone, you'll never be able to find me again"

It's a little story but it goes a long way in developing character driven athletics.

Explain what you believe to be the moral of this story?

As a coach, parent, athlete how do you demonstrate respect in the context of athletics?

Responsibility

Activity: Giving Calhoun the Ball by Brian Cavanaugh

Responsibility is accepting ownership of one's duty or obligation.

Read the following short story and answer the questions that follow.

There once was an important football game between two teams. One team was much larger than the other. The larger team was dominating the game and beating the smaller team. The coach for the smaller team saw that his team was not able to contain or block the larger team. So his only hope was to call the plays that went to Calhoun, the fastest back in the arena who could easily outrun the larger players once he broke free. The coach talked with his quarterback about giving the ball to Calhoun and letting him run with it. The first play the coach was excited, but Calhoun did not get the ball. The second play was again signaled for Calhoun, but once again Calhoun did not get the ball. Now the game was in the final seconds with the smaller team's only hope being for Calhoun to break free and score the winning touchdown. The third play and again Calhoun did not get the ball. The coach was very upset so he sent in the play again for the fourth and final play. The ball was snapped and the quarterback was sacked, ending the game.

The coach was furious as he confronted the quarterback: "I told you four times to give the ball to Calhoun and now we've lost the game."

The quarterback stood tall and told the coach, "Four times I called the play to give the ball to Calhoun. The problem was that Calhoun did not want the ball."

As a coach, parent or athlete you have a responsibility to take the ball and run with it. What is your responsibility in regards to the following?

Academics

Attendance

Behavior

Modeling

Sportsmanship

Activity: Bruce Brown

Sportsmanship is playing by both the spirit and the letter of the rules. During athletic events there are five roles being played out. It is the responsibility of the coach to teach, the athlete to perform, the officials to govern the contest, the spectators to cheer and the athletic director to conduct event management. From your perspective as a coach, parent or athlete how can the following foster sportsmanship:

1. Coach

2. Athlete

3. Official

4. Spectator

5. Athletic Director
